Pregnant Students and radiation risks: Significant and robust scientific data indicate that the risks of in-utero birth defects are zero at typical dental exposures for patients. It follows that the risk is also zero for radiography operators. Therefore there are no contraindications for pregnant students operating x-ray equipment. In addition if the student follows prescribed guidelines for operating x-ray equipment there has been and will not be any additional radiation exposure above background radiation.